Want To Take Over Nanking, Shanghai

PUSH TOWARD HANKOW

Nanking, April 9. The Communists were today reported to have unleashed a general offensive against the entire government-held 100-mile stretch of the North Bank of the Yangtse River East and West of Nanking. Meanwhile they are stepping up their major drive on the Central China base at Hankow apparently in an effort to pound the falling. Nationalists into unconditional surrender.

A most reliable source said today the Communist leaders in Peiping, though indicating willingness to make some concessions, are still standing pat on their chief demand for their forces to cross the Yangtse River and occupy Nanking and Shanghai as bases for what the Communists described as a "nationwide manhunt" for war criminals including the retired President Chiang Kai-shek.

The Communist demands were deadlined for April 12 for a "yes" or "no" answer. Formal talks were to open today in Peiping on the demands but the government spokesman said no information has yet been received whether they will be held.

Another reliable source told, the United Press today that the chief bottleneck at present revolves around the Communist demand for a "peace crossing" of the Yangtse River and the war criminal issue which was hinted in Acting President Li Tsung-jen's cable to Mao Tsetung on Thursday night offering himself to the Communists for punishment for so-called

The informant said this "peace crossing" demand is one of those inised by the Communists outside the scope of their original eight terms

In short, of two mysterious "third party" he said, the Communist attitude representatives, is considering is that peace talks and crossing sending some more government and non-partisan leaders to Pelof the river by their troops must be conducted simultaneously.

Unacceptable

This is totally unacceptable to the government and the peace delegates in Peiping have been instructed to do their utmost to obtain concessions. The government's stand is that peace must first be established on the present military status quo but future geographical redistribution may be made in a transfer of garrisons by the conlition government or a joint Knomintang-Communist committee.

EUROPE,

Washington, April 9. U.S. military authorities believe this country would not win a future war unless it maintained bases in Europe and Asia, it was disclosed today.

Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall, testifying at a closed session of the House Appropriations Committee on Army financial needs for the fiscal year 1950, said the United States is not in a position to throw rockets or planes from its shores across oceans to win a war.

"Specifically, it is essential for the United States to be able to maintain a foothold on the Euro-Asian continent," he said, and added that some military authorities thought it would take 15 to 30 years to win a war without such bases, "if we could win it at all."

The proposed telephone rental has aroused widesprend dissatisfaction among the Chinese mercantile community who consider that it is entirely unjustifled.

Taking the lead in the protest is the Chinese General Chamber of Commèrce, which will make representations to the Government next week on behalf of all Chinese mercantile interests.

The main grounds of opposition, it is learned, are that at a time when business is gradually folling a off, and all prices are dropping after the post war boom public utility charges should not be increased.

The contention put forward by the Hong Kong Telephone Company that their income was insufficient for them to pay eight per cent return on capital is based on false premises, in that If more telephones were installed their income would be more than Mallorie, European YMCA, ample to pay the prescribed rate of dividend to shareholders, according to the submissions of the

Since the Company should, with the arrival of additional equipment and instruments later in the year, be able to instal more telephones to meet the heavy backlog of applications, there, is no pecessity to apply for any increase in charges at this stage.

Plans made last year and early this year will come to maturity then. There though it would not be wise to in 1949/50. If you do not go abroad, then concentrate on developing foreign business or making the most of contacts with people from overseas.

> Socially too, it will be an interesting period. You will certainly enjoy life during the coming 12 months. If you keep on the right side of people who matter, you should score some outstanding success. But there is some danger that you will get entangled in troubles not of your own making and make enemies rather than friends. There will be, many ups and downs in your personal affairs but on the whole It will be a happy year. A broken friendship or disillusionment in a love affair will be the prelude to some happy times and probably marriage. If already married expect estrangement within the family but ever-increasing prosperity throughout 1940/50.

DON'T LET'S BE BEASTLY

In the days, not so long ago, vhen we wore uniform or were held captive by the conqueror, it would not have seemed credible that the Allies would eventually be pouring millions of money nto Germany, and regarding Japan as a potential bastion of democracy in the Far cse countrol. East.

Such developments are, of rourse, an inevitable outcome of a modern war "won" by countries such as Britain and America. The victors have to rule for a time, and are faced with the responsibility of rebuilding a devastated and and its economy. They are also obliged to have an army of occupation to covern and control the defeated people, but there is the automatic reaction sooner or later against its use and the sums of money needed to maintain

This has already happened. n Germany, Yesterday's rables announced that the three major Western powers have agreed to abolish military rule in their zones when a new German government is established. The circumstances in which the Pact was concluded are still involved in considerable mystery, on which a later volume of Mr. Churchill's memoirs may be expected to throw some light," (He when he stated that every statesman was liable to make one great mistake).

The text of the Pact was kept a close secret until after Japan's surrender. Mr. James Byrnes. who was then Secretary of State, and who was present at the Yalta Conference, stated that the Pact was signed the day after his departure, that he knew nothing about it until after the surrender of Japan, and that it was such a "top secret" that the document was kept at the White House, instead of being entrusted to the State Department,

Pians For Silk Promotion

Tokyo, April 8. Mr. Ariste Potton, President of the Provisional International Silk Bureau, said today that he had received encouraging responses from both American and Japanese officials here to the Burenu's proposal of a five cents a pound levy on silk exports to finance a slik promotion campaign.

Mr. Potton said he hoped to get Japan's agreement to join the programme before leaving for China on April 13.

"Promotion of silk sales is of led primary importance to Japan le its efforts to expand exports," the French chief of the international silk organisation said.

Under the plan Mr. Potton has ! presented in conferences here sitk exporters such as Japan would collect five cents a pound charge on involces of all allk exports and turn the maney. over to the group'r special pro- population. motional council.

Operating under a permanent silk union of 30 countries which will grow out of the Provisional Poreau, the Council will launch publicity campaigns in all potentail slik market areas to encourage buyer demand for silk products and encourage textile manufacturers to use more silk.

It also will attempt to influence governments to modify the present import restrictions on sille currently classed as a luxury in many countries.

Mr. Potton said Italy already has agreed to the fund-raising surcharge plan on condition that Japan--the biggest raw silk exporter-also joins.

He sald he would make the same proposal later this month to exporters in China and Syria and would report on the results of this negotiations to a meeting of the Bureau in Zurich on May 30 —United Press.

German Assets

London, April 8. The three Western representatives at the Austrian treaty talks by the Foreign Ministers' deputies today renounced all claims on the German assets in their Zones of Austria. This step was taken at the deputies' last meeting before the Easter recess. lasting until April 25. States representative, said that in his Government's view no German assets should be made available as reparations in the Western Zones of Austria, Britain and France troops, concurred.

Mr. George Zarubin, the Soviet delegate, asked whether this statement meant that the Western powers were making claims on German assets in the Western Zones of Austria. He enquired whether they would be turned over to Austria free of charge, and without compensation to German nationals.

The Western deputies stated that this was the case.—Reuter.

"This, is the rear vard--if it runs back this far. Let's try and get nside- "

• It too them almost 10 minutes to reach the main path through the piled wood and crates. But when they reached it and it widened there was a little smile on Baggart's face. Ho led the way, with Updike following close behind. The house was box-like in shape.

They stopped near the rear door. Updike looked at Gil, who nodded and reached for his automatic. He moved out from the path between the boxes. covered the distance to the steps of the rear door in a few strides,

His right hand twisted the knobit didn't move. He raised the gun tewards the lock—the door suddenly was jerked open-Gil Baggart fell forward.

There were two shots. Gil was beneath the hum of the bullets. He heard Charlie Updike groan, heard him take a deep breath. Then he was diving at the figure just inside the door. He missed the shape he tried to strike at with his right hand—but the barrel of his gun struck fiesh in a slashing blow. A man swore flercely—Gil Baggart, on his knees, struck again with his gun. There was a third shot—yellow flared through the darkness of the house. The gun muzzle struck boneman cried out and weight suddenly battered Gil off balance.

A flashlight stream cut the darkness -Updike was inside the house. Giltwisted his head—saw the blur of an arm above him, twisted to one side. The light beam in Updike's hand struck squarely on the white face of Guy Maxlin. Updike slashed downward with his right hand—there was a sound like a small weight striking wood. Maxlin collapsed. He tried to lift himself from the floor. He muttered thickly:

"That dirty-Freedman-" Gil Baggart said slowly:

"Shut the door, Charlie—he was expecting Freedman-and when turned the knob-"

Charlie Updike said in a voice that whistled: ."Get-cuffs on him, Gil-I'm going to take---a trip---" GIL Baggart got cuffs from his pocket, twisted 'Maxlin's hands behind him. The cuffs snapped. Updike, leaning against the wall, said in a dull, thin tone: "God—Gill

-he got me. Get a light-use that flash-" Gil Baggart found a switch—light filled the kitchen. There was a gun on the floor near Maxlin; he got it away from the man. 'Uudike's face was white and twisted—he pressed his right hand under his heart. "I'm through, Gil-" he breathed weakly. "That dirty crook-Vannic.

You go get him, Gil. It'll be softnow---" He closed his eyes. His body shuddered; he slipped slowly towards the floor. Gil Baggart caught him before his head struck wood. He laid him flat, leaned over him. Gil Baggart said slowly: "Wellyou got him, Maxlin. You'll burn for this job. You'd have burned for the Grayber kill-" Guy Maxlin said harshly: "I didn't

"All right-you alone here?" Maxlin nodded. He said in a shaken voice: "Jeeze-you can't take me in. You might have been the mob-" Gil smiled coldly. "What mob?" he asked. Maxlin half closed his eyes, "Bradwell's," he muttered. "He did for Grayber-and Kennedi."

"Yeah-well, Vannie doesn't figure it that way. You'll burn, Maxlin. lie's got the stuff on you.now." Maxlin spoke hoarsely.

"I can make it right for you-to let me out of this!" Gil shook his head. "Like hell you can."

"I'll give it to you straight-because it won't matter any, Maxlin, You murdered Timmer-he was getting set to squeal. Bradwell was getting strong, and maybe you had an idea he was shoving Don Vannic in a good spot. You set a mob on Bradwell-and Don got some of them quiet. Cass and Rooney went out-and maybe that other gun finished up back here. Then you went out and got Chad Kennelli-"

""That's a lie!" Maxlin breathed. · "Listen, Maxlin-1'm in Don Vannic's way. I'm in Bradwell's way. So was Updike. Vannie was trying to frame us when he sent us here. He got the tip you were hiding out-we were supposed to stick close to the house. At one a siren was to be turned loose - after Freedman comes in to give you a warning for a duck. You were supposed to get outside, and we were to grab you."

Maxlin stared stupidly at Gil. Baggart said softly: "But Vannic's making a play, Maxlin. He wants to get me and Updike out of things, He went too far: He told me he wanted to keep your pinch quiet-but that isn't it."

Gil Baggart' looked at his wristwatch. He said grimly:

"It's 10 minutes of one, Maxlin. And Vannic, won't bother about any siren wail. He'll send Freedman in any minute now, and the stoolle won't be alone. Someone will be with himguess who, Maxlin."

Maxlin's fat face kept twisting. He said hoursely: "Sol Bradwell-" Gll nodded, his eyes narrowed. "Who got Chad Kennelli, Maxlin?" he asked slowly. "I'll give you-a rod-" Gil said: "Who got Kennelli-and why? A rod'll help, Maxlin., You might get Bradwell. They'll be herepretty quick-"

-Maxlin said flercely. "Give me a rod, dick. Sol Bradwell-he got, Grayber-the stoolie knows that, Sol wanted Vannic on the inside-"

Gil Baggart stood straight and nodded. "I- figured -Vennic flied aboutthat deal," he said slowly. "Who got Kennelli?

Maxlin shook his head. "I don'tknow"-he breathed.

They heard a car engine outside. Gil said: "Well-here we are-so long, Maxlinl" Maxlin twisted around and cried out hoarsely: "I'll give it to you, Baggart. It was Timmer-" He sold thickly: "Even Freedman didn't know that, Baggart. Timmer-got Kennelli! I sent him over.

Gil Baggart twisted to one side as a figure came through the door. The figure bent low- and red worked out of the gun muzzle. Gil Baggart let his body drop heavily. Two more figures went in through the front door, towards the rear of the house. The siren wail was closer now. A voice from the rear of the house said thickly, as light flared and then died: "Jeeze—it's Maxlin—and dick--" It sounded like Sol Bradwell's voice. Gil Baggart lay motionless-heard footfalls hurry and die. The rear door slammed. Bradwell and his men had gone. The siren was very close now--he could hear the engine of the car.

Baggart pulled himself to his feet, went out the front door. A car swerved in close to the curb-men piled out. Uniformed men. Don Vannic reached Gil's side. He said grimly:

"Has it happened yet—did you get him?" Gil Baggart shoved his gun back in the holster. He nodded his head.

"lie got--Charlie-first." Don Vannic swore. He said to the men gathered about them:

"Go inside-watch yourselves-" Gil' Baggart turned towards the house. Vannic at his side. Vannic said: "Did Freedman work

CINEMATIC OPERA

The short visit of "La Traviata" to the Lee Theatre, where it was shown as film under the misleading title of "The Lost One," appears to me an indication that the film moguls are not beyond artistic redemption..

Certain films have led me to give up all hope for any observation of either artistic or intelligence requirements. The Great God Dollar appears too much to be the shrine at which producers, stars, distributors and renters flock to their sycophantic worship, all eleo forgotten. Business must of course always be business. Film stars and technicians have to be paid, and the money to pay them has of course to come from the box-office eventually,

In imagine "La Traviata" probably did not constitute such a box-office success at the Lee as "Bathing Beauty" or "Romance on the High Seas". On the principle of swings and roundabouts, however, it would be good to know that we can expect more films of onera if they conform to as high a standard as "The Lost One."

I understand the film was made by an Italian Company with principals and chorus of the Rome Opera House. Rome and Milan have always been the spiritual home of all that is best in Italian Opera, Caruso, Tamageno, Tettrazini, Galil-Curei, Giannini, Mortinelli, Fleta, Schipa and Pinza are but a few of the household names in the operatic world who received their training in Rome and Milan.

The debut of a new 'operatic star was in the good old days, an event of unprecedented importance, awaited anxiously by the opera-going public.

"The Lost One" turned out to be a very fine translation of operatic art through the medium of the screen. Violetta possessed a truly lovely voice, the flexible qualities of which were well displayed in the two famous arias "Sempra Libra" and "Ah, fors e lui". Particularly in the latter aria -which is an extremely difficult obstacle to any soprano-she covered the range of song without that horrible glissando which mars so many interpretations.

Again, in the death ecche from Act Ill, the difficult task of reconciling a lovely voice whilst at death's door. was extremely well-done. If she "was an unconscionable time a-dying" (and incongruously enough Verdi has given her many pages of lovely-music to sing before Death delivers the final coup-de-grace), she dld not make the scene appear too absurd.

The prospect opened up by this film (to be shown again at the "Liberty" in Kowloon) is whether further films of the opera can be expected in the future. If finance is the only consideration, the expectations can probably be classed as nil, and yet dld the Arthur Rank organisation produce "Henry V" and "Hamlet" with other than doubts as to their respective financial success?

I think the answer is that chances of either of these two films proving money-spinners was rated considerably less than 50/50. Yet the fact remains that "Hamlet" has not only won Olivier an Oscar, but has played crowded houses wherever it has been shown :

From this fact, it seems safe to adduce a generalisation—to wit, that a subject of a film does not necessarily have to be "popular" in order to prove a box-office success. On this basis then, I see every reason why "Faust", "Rigoletto", "Boheme", "Pagliacci" and "Carmen" (to start with!) should not prove irresistible successes. "Faust" "Boheme" and "Carmen" are known the world over, and this factor, I feel, is one essential attribute of success.

SUNDAY

A commencing point in the programmes-heralding interesting programmes over the Easter week-end-is the Symphony Concert tonight which consists of:

> Planoforte Concerto Schumann, Double Concerto for) Violin & Cello. Till Eulenspiegel's) Merry Pranks

Brahins Richard ____ Strauss.

Romanticism, Classicism and Modernism. In one programme, each represented by an acknowledged master in his own sphere, shows careful preparation and forethought. For this care, listeners are indebted to the programme-arranged at Radio Hong Kong. Betty Brown is a very fine planiste as listeners will know—I know more. I know how much time and trouble Mrs. Brown spends in compiling and preparing her programmes, even to the point of ensuring harmonious transition from one record to the next in "Thursday Serenade".

The Schumann Concerto is tonight played by Dame Myra Hess, whose unflagging efforts in England during the War years did so much to arouse and sustain interest in good music. My own recording of this Concerto is by Cortot, so it will be an added interest to compare notes tonight.

The complete concerto takes about 30 minutes to play and the whole of that time is occupied with one of the test examples of Schumann's work. The thrilling opening chords presage quite clearly what is to come, although giving but little indication of the intricate rhythms and cadenzas he affords the soloist towards the end of the allegro in the first movement. In the second movement (andante sostenuto) one of the loveliest passages in any plano concerto is to be heard. The tremendous climax at the end of the third and last movement is, to me, one of the finest moments in music I know, and constant hearing still does not dull the thrill of there majestic crashing chords.

The Brahms Double Concerto (played tonight by Jascha Helfetz and Emanuel Feuermann) is not classed by puriets as of Brohm's best. Edwin Evans points out that Joachim, the great violinist for whom Brahms wrote the solo violin part, had previously quarrelled with Brahms and that probably this factor influenced Joachim's Althought the concerto brought, to the two old friends together again, Richard Specht complains "as a whole, it is sombre and artificial, although I admit the dignity of the main . themes and the broad sweeping phrases of the andante."

-Strauss, with Sibelius, make matchless names in the love of modern European music. "Till Eulenspiegel" is a symphonic . tono-poem, based on the Austrian story of a legendary imp (somewhat Puckish by nature) who had an incredible capacity for getting into mischief.

MONDAY

Tonight Medtiner's No. 2 Plane Concerto is to be heard in the "Concerte" with the composer at the key-board. Born in Russia in 1879, Meditiner today is only now becoming recognised as a contributor to music who has much that is new to say. The Maharajah of Mysore has recently endowed a foundation to further Medtiner's music and it is under the auspices of this. Society that the recording to be heard tonight has been issued.

TUESDAY

At 9:45 p.m. the Chamber Music Concert consists of two works:-Sonata for Violin & Piano. Handel.

Sonata No. 2 What is there to be said of Handel's music that has not already been said before? To my taste, Handel's music -in whatever form he chose to write -is eminently satisfying. It bears hearing time and time again withnever a whit of staleness in the repetition. This, I feel, must be one of the tests (and the mysteries!) of all great music.

WEDNESDAY

Tonight there is a promising programme of which space prevents more than a bard mention in passing. Suffice it to say, you may hear:

Haydn's Military Symphony. Elgar's Nursery Sulte. Rimsky-Korsakov's Capriccio Espagnole

GOOD FRIDAY

44.200 Radio Hong Kong is on the air continuously from 10:30 a.m. until 11:15 p.m. to mark the special holiday. In a day of interesting and appropriate music, Brahms "Requiem" is an outstanding offering at 2.40 p.m. | Poshaps the even lovelier "Requiem" of " Verdi could be given at a later date.

EASTER SATURDAY

Continuous programmes are available today from 8:00 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. No space is left for any comment -(who said "Good!"?) -but I can promise sufficient variety to please every taste.

New Technique In Speedy Continuous Prefabrication

A new technique invented by Kirkcaldy, Scotland, man which enables the top, back and base of a furniture cabinet to be prefabricated of plywood in one piece at the rate of one every three minutes on an automatic machine, has been introduced to the United States. Two London designers who had used the Kirkcaldy system have flown to New York to receive one of the two 1st prizes awarded for lowest cost furniture designs in an International Competition for which nearly 3,000 entries were received from 31 countries.

The Council of Industrial Design helped to promote the British interest. The two London men won a cheque for 5,000 dollars. They had submitted sectional unit storage pieces which were of such high standing that they shared the three prizes for this section. The technique used by the London men was invented by Mr. James: Henderson of the firm of Matthew Spears and Company, Kirkcaldy, ...

Apart from the continuous prefabrication at high speed, the Kirkenldy invention reduces the number of joints to two, and halves the -normal quantity of wood used. The designs have been protected until this new type of furniture has gone into production on a large scale.

Do you always ''PLAY SAFE?''

I notice that some children never do ''PLAY SAFE'' and when they've found that out, it's already too late.

Here are two examples: 1. A little girl had a new dress with frills and laces. Her Mother said she might wear it to a party provided she took along a jacket or something, as the weather might change later on. Now this little girl was stubborn and just wouldn't take anything with her to the party, but when she got back she caught a cold and had to stay in bed and take nasty medicine. 2. Dad told his son Tompy not to play football so near the road, for passing cars were dangerous. Tommy would not listen to his father's advice, and said he could take care of himself. One day while he was playing, the ball went right into the middle of the road. Tommy, forgetting everything, ran to pick it and didn't see the car coming towards him. The car bumped against him and he was taken to hospital. The doctor examined one of his legs and found that it was broken. Now

Tommy cannot play football again for a long time.
You see, by just not 'PLAYING SAFE' a lot can happen and sometimes nothing can be done to restore the things that are broken. I do hope you all will always remember to ''PLAY SAFE''.

Happy days to you all, from

HERE I AM, DARLING. WOULD YOU MIND SEEING IF MY CHICKENS ARE

MY LIFE STORY THE LONE RANGER AS TOLD BY A CHOPPER

I am a chopper. I was born in a smithy in Shanghai Street. When I was completed, I was hung up on the wall by my master.

The business in the smithy was rather poor, but every time a custoner came in, it gave me the hope that I would be taken away to see the outside world. I was there on the wall neglected and forgotten for about one week, and rust began to gather on my body. Then one day, a woman came and bought me.

Let me now tell you something shout my new home. I found out from my friend who was in the same cupboard where I was put, that the woman who took me here was the wife of a cobbier and the mother of three disobedient children. Only the eldest son went to school and the other two stayed at home. They were always quarrelling and fighting with each other, and even their mother's constant beating did not seem to do any good. There did not seem to be any brotherly love between these two boys, and they did not seem to understantl that it was their duty to lessen their parent's burdens by loving each other.

One morning, Sing was fighting with Sang; first they fought with their bare hands then they started to throw things at each other, and finally Sang picked me up and using all his strength drove me into sing's leg. Sing fell down and arled bitterly. I could feel the warm blood running over my body, and I laid there with a wild cay frozen in my throat. In a moment the whole family crowded round us, and the injured youngster was curried away.

Then someone picked me up and earsed at me for having nearly caused a death, and threw me into the garbage can. I stayed in that anelling place for one day and one night, and the next morning I was thrown into the dust cart together with a lot of rubbish. When the driver saw me he said that it was a pity that such a new chopper like me should be thrown into the sea, so he took me home in the evening. I was given a good cleaning and sharpened, ready to be used.

I was given the duty of chopping Are-wood, so night and day I chopped and chopped. Then one night, a thief came and filled his bag with goods and I was among his loot, but when he was escaping a dog chased after him so he abandoned me on the road and ran.

The next morning a rag collector picked me up and brought me to a smithy to sell. After much bargaining I was finally sold, and when I looked around, to my surprise I found myself in the place where I was born.

Well, here I am in the name old place, ready to start life all over Cut out the two ends and the top so that the bottom is joined. Sew up the ends with cotton. Glue coloured paper over the sides. Put some plusticine on the inside of the boat, in a dish and watch your rance sail.

* FAIRYLAND MODEL: Get a box and one end of the box put some brown paper, and that will do for your cave. Make trees out of cardboard or put in cuttings from a tree, and that will be the woods. You can make a creek out of silver paper. For the fairy folk and mushrooms, get coloured plasticine, and now your model is complete.

TOY FOR BABY: Gather up a dozen cotton reels and paint them all bright colours (or if baby is likely to put them in his mouth, boil them). Thread them on a string and tie them securely together. You can give a cost of yarnish for a finishing touch.

MIRROR PICTURE: Draw a circle around a picture of your favourite person or animal. Cut out and paste on to a small mirror. Paint a border around it, using bright colours. Attach string or cord to the back of the mirror and hang it on the wall.

NOVELTY CARD: Make a reindeer card and use cotton wool for the snow. Draw a reindeer on a card with a background of pines, then paste fluffs of cotton wool on the card to give the effect of failing snow. This makes a most effective card.

PRETTY TRAY: Get some flour and salt and sufficient water to make a firm, dry dough. Press the dough into a circle and raise the edges. Leave this to harden for several days and them paint it. This makes an attractive pin or ashtray.

An Autobiography Of A Pair Of Shoes

I am a pair of shoes. I was born in a shoe factory, and very nicely made.

I am a pair of high heels which are two inches in height; pretty red faces made of fine satin with pretty patterns on them. I am very simple, no shoe-laces or buckles but just strings and nails to put my parts together.

Shortly after I was born, I was

One day in the afternoon, a beautiful lady came into the shop. She thought I was pretty so she bought me. I have become a servant of that lady since then. She loves me very much for my beauty and she puts me on whenever she goes out. I am always in the ball-room with her, also to the biggest hotels in the town and many other large buildings and private residences. Two months have passed since

Two months have passed since she bought me. Now, I have a hole under my sole and my faces have become wrinkled with lines. As I am in such an unpresentable state, she begins to think little of me, and gave me away to a poor woman.

I am of no use to anyone now, for I'm all in pieces.

YOUR DREAMS | DONALD DUCK & WHAT THEY MEAN

FACES -A coarse or ugly face means ill fortume. To dream you are washing your own face, shows trouble of your own causing. Strange faces show a change of residence or occupation.

FAILURE-If you fail at anything in your dream, you will succeed in roal life.

FALL-To fall from a height is a sign of misfortune, and the longer the distance of the fall, the greater the coming trouble.

FARM -- To dream you work on afarm indicates material success, though after some struggle on your part. If you visit a farm, it indicates good health.

FINGERS-To cut or hurt your finger is a sign of quarreling with your friends or family. FIRE--An omen of warning. If the fire is small and does no mischief, expect news of some sort, though of no great importance. If the fire burns you, expect a serious mischance in FLOWERS-Great happiness, unless you throw the flowers away. Then you will suffer from your own carelessness.

FOOD—A fortunate sign pro-vided you are soon satisfied. But it is not a good omen to eat like a glutton.

A DREAM

I had a dream last night and I remembered it very clearly. I dreamt that I was in an unknown place where everything was white. It seemed as if I was walking on the clouds of heaven. I met many angels who played with me and made me happy. They led me to their homes and made me their guest.

When it was dark they said farewell to each other and told me it was time to go home. The weather was very bad, the sky full of clouds and I could not find my way. I went here and there and found nothing when suddenly I fell into a large hole which made me afraid, but then I awoke and found myself in bed.

It was the sweetest dream l ever had and I do hope to dream a dream like that again soon. Honour certificate to Robert Shiu Bing Lai of 367. Queen's Road West, 2nd floor, Hong Kong.

Handel's 'Messiah'

Handel's 'Messiah' has become almost traditional at Easter-time. This year a broadcast of the oratorio will be performed by the London Symphony Orchestra and Royal Choral Society, conducted by Sir Malcolm Sargent, and the soloists will be Ena Mitchell, Mary Jarred, Heddle Nash, Trevor Anthony, and Arnold Greir. Listeners will hear the BBC broadeast of Handel's masterpiece in the overseas services this week.

The version of the 'Messiah' performed today and loved by millions has many accretions Mozant and others made their own arrangements of it. The original version is never performed. An original full score and complete set of parts, however, exists. Handel left them in his will to the Foundling Hospital, and, when taste. in music changed, they lay forgotten and dust-covered on a shelf in the chapel library for well over a hundred years. There, in 1896, the Foundling Hospital organist rediscovered them.

May We Help You?

May we assist the Government in their spirited campaign to prove at a minimum of cost and with the aid of genuine photographs that the millennium is here?

Here are two suggestions that readily occur to us for fine electioneering captions to be matched to appropriate genuino photographs:

Thanks to Socialism England racehorses are now better bred, hetter fed, better housed, better groomed, better trained, better treated, and better ridden on better racecourses. In consequence they are in every way better animals, better able to give of their best, and therefore, better to watch, and better to bet on."

No. 2 "Never in the whole history of this country have citizens of all classes shown such profound repect and deep love for Ministers of the Crown as they do today. The reason for this is not far to seek. Citizens of all classes know from experience that each and enery Minister exists colely to do them service. They have but to ask to reccive.

"Small wonder, therefore, that wherever they may go Ministers of the Crown are greeted with thunderous cheers and happy emiles."

Uncle Tumble's worry corner

I am a big-hearted, curly-haired, handsome boy of 32, and my father is an ugly little chap of 54, although he pretends to be much younger, particularly if women are in the offing.

When casual acquaintances or even complete strangers, such as food snoopers or bailiffs, come to the house, we are both jolly and talkative, and people say: "What a charming pair!"

When we are alone, though, we are morose and irritable, and spend most of our time in quarrelling violently or hiding the cigarettes and the bacon ration from each other. Can you, please, with your wonderful knowlege of human nature, tell us the cause of this?-PUZZLED SYD AND DAD.

Yes, You can't stick your father and he hates the sight of you. Anything else you couple of dim-wits would like to know?

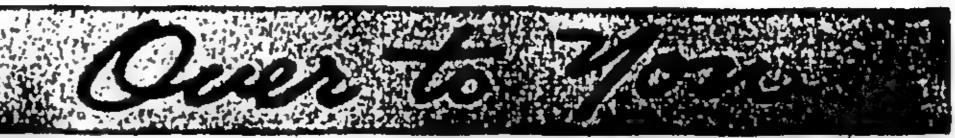

Awkward

We can't help feeling that those school teachers whose duty it is to instruct our tiny tots in the mysteries of sex are occasionally faced with a pretty awkward situation. From time to time, we fancy, one of their brighter little pupils, who has seen a prominent planner on the news reels, must shake. his head dubiously and hold up his hand.

"Broadly speaking, ma'am, I don't deny that you've told us the truth to the best of your ability," we can imagine him saying. "Still, how do you account for him?"

That we hold to be well said. Indeed, we ourselves are often pretty sceptical about these new-fangled scientific theories when we come to consider the astringent, slightly sour. features of that great planner the Rt. Hon. - - We may have picked up our knowledge in the rirects, but we still think that we can recognise a chap who was found under a gooseberry bush when we see one.

Eight of France's men and women experts, four of each, played a match last week at the Hamilton Club, London, against eight of the Club's selected players. Nearly all the French players and many of ours were European internationals. The skill displayed was, therefore, of the highest order, but this did not mean that these experts took correct views always. Here is a hand which directors ways. Here is a hand which illustrates the point:

At one table, after North (dealer) passed, East opened with One Spade, and the duel between Diamonds and Spades ended in South going down two tricks in Six Diamonds doubled. East and West were vulnerable.

At the other tables, South, after two passes; opened with Three Diamonds. At one table West overcalled Three Hearts, North Three No-trumps, East Four Hearts, North, after two passes. Four No-trumps, which was doubled and taken out into Five Diamonds by South—also doubled.

It will be seen that the declarer can lose two tricks in Clubs and one in Spades, but the contract was . made! The Ace of Spades took trick-1, and the Spade return was ruffed, Seven rounds of Diamonds followed, East discarding two Hearts because West had bid Hearts. The King of Hearts at trick 10 then dropped East's Jack. allowing the 10 to win the finesse on the next round to complete the de-clarer's 11 tricks. What a coup it would have been had West thrown the Ace of Clubs, and had East kept Hearts J. X. and Clubs K. Ji

At the romaining tables the bidding was simply South, Three Diamonds; North, Three No-trumps. A Spade was led, and the declarer made only four tricks. East and West, seeing they had missed a game in Spades, remarked, "Five Damonds over Four Spades is a cheap save, so we lost nothing by not bidding Four Spades!"

Floating Exhibition Empire Produce.

The British cargo motor liner Port Brisbane which sails on her maiden voyage to Australia this month has the appearance of an ex-hibition ship. The chambers in which refrigerated produce is to be carried have been lined with aluminium alloy in place of steel, and its use on this extensive scale will save weight and enable some 260 tons more cargo to be carried. In the hold are displayed carcases

Linen Chest' Gowns At Charity Ball

By JANET MARTIN

At the Rotary Club Charity Ball, on Friday, eight model evening gowns were displayed to a appreciative audience. Each gown was designed and made in the Colony, by "Linen Chest."

The designs chosen offered an interesting contrast in styles, featuring the continued popularity of the full-skirte vogue as well as the new, sheathlike silhouette, with narrow skirts and intriguing side slits.

Very few changes take place from year to year in the materials used for party frocks for small girls-nylon fabrics are seen more often nowadays, but cottons, rayons or pure silks seem to be still preferred.

Although the actual designs do not alter to any radical extent, there are subtle changes this

Badminton Title

(By "KIMBERLEY")

Agents: CHINA NAVIGATION CO., LTD. Equipped with a superior powerful overhead smash, Robert Tay and Patrick Wong of the Chinese KMCA, came through victoriously over a defiant, tough and altogether first-class Hong Kong University pair of H. J. Heah and T. B. Tech, to win the Colony's Senior Men's Badminton Doubles championship at the Kowloon Cricket Club Tast hight.

The University pair proved to be one which had both Tay and Wong at their match best. Mixing their badminton technique in perfect unison, Heah and Teoh rose to all that the champions had to dish out. At times even when play developed into moments of concentrated trickery, and they were often enough, the students outsmarted the veteran champions, to provide the spectators, with their crave for suspense, tension and thrills inherent in the sport.

SOUTH CHINA 'A' BEATEN BY CHINESE ATHLETIC

The honour of being the first team to lower the colours of the all-conquering South China "A" goes to Chinese Athletic, who beat their redoubtable opponents by two clear goals, in a First Division soccor match at Causeway Bay yesterday.

The Athletic victory was a most popular one and the crowds were most jubilant to see South China. "A", who have reigned supreme for so long, meet their Waterloo.

In a one-sided game at Caroline Hill, Club again easily accounted for Eastern, winning by five goals to two, while at Sookunpoo, Army unexpectedly went down to a heavy defeat at the hands of Kit Chee, losing by six goals to two.

Filipino Boxer Gives Good Show

San Francisco, April 9. Bernard Docusen, 145% pounds, New Orleans Filipino-American, put on a masterful boxing exhibition last night for a 10-round decision over Bobby Jones, 142%, Oakland. Jabbing his rival steadily with a fast left hand and raining punches at close range, Docusen won seven rounds handily. .

Bernard's brother, Maxie Docusen, New Orleans, won a unanimous 10-round bout over Alfredo Escobar, 134, Los Angeles, in the semiwindup. It was his 57th professional fight without a defent.

There were no knockdowns but Escobar's nose was bloody from the fourth round on, and his right eye was swollen at the finleh.- Associated Press.
